Key Insights & Patterns

1. Technology Dominance

The 'Magnificent Seven' stocks (AAPL, MSFT, AMZN, GOOGL, META, NVDA, TSLA) appear across virtually all major portfolios. NVIDIA is the most consensus pick, appearing in 8 of 10 top strategist portfolios as the primary AI beneficiary.

2. ETF Hedging Strategy

Multi-strategy funds like Bridgewater, Millennium, and Citadel hold massive positions in broad market ETFs (SPY, IVV, IWM, QQQ) as beta hedges while maintaining concentrated long/short equity books.

3. Geographic Concentration

40% of top 25 funds are headquartered in New York City, with another 20% in Connecticut (Stamford, Greenwich, Westport). London is the primary non-US hub with 12% representation.

4. Strategy Diversity

Multi-strategy funds dominate top AUM rankings, but quantitative strategies (Renaissance, Two Sigma, AQR) and global macro (Bridgewater, Tudor, Rokos) maintain significant market share.

5. Healthcare & GLP-1 Theme

Eli Lilly and Novo Nordisk are increasingly appearing in top portfolios as the GLP-1 weight loss drug market expands. Viking and Coatue have notable concentrations here.

6. Semiconductor Concentration

Beyond NVIDIA, strategists are concentrated in TSMC (manufacturing monopoly), Broadcom (AI networking), and Lam Research (equipment) - all critical AI infrastructure plays.

Methodology & Data Sources

Data Sources

- * SEC 13F Filings: Quarterly institutional investment manager reports (Form 13F-HR)
- * Hedge Fund Rankings: Pensions & Investments, HedgeLists, SWFI Institute
- * Portfolio Analytics: 13f.info, GuruFocus, PortfolioSavvy, HoldingsChannel
- * Report Period: Q1 2025 (as of March 31, 2025)
- * AUM Data: Discretionary assets under management as of year-end 2024

Limitations

- * 13F filings only report long equity positions - short positions are not disclosed
- * International securities may be underreported depending on filing requirements
- * AUM figures are estimates based on available public data
- * Holdings data has 45-day reporting delay from quarter end
- * Some funds (Renaissance Medallion) are not required to file 13F

Overlap Analysis Method

Overlap identification is based on stocks appearing in 3 or more top strategist portfolios with meaningful position sizes (>0.5% of portfolio). Holdings are weighted by conviction level based on concentration and number of strategists holding the position.
